After hours working their animals at home, miles spent in the truck, loading and unloading tack, and getting both the student and the animal show-ready, the Northwest District Junior Livestock Show is an exciting stage on which students can showcase their livestock projects. From the youngest showman, to the seniors taking their final lap around the show ring, NWDJLS is a family tradition that has lasted 83 years. The show, however, does not happen by itself. It takes hundreds of volunteer hours and the dedication of many people to put it together. I would like to thank the NWDJLS Executive Committee, the Greater Enid Chamber of Commerce, the Species' Superintendents, and the Species' Committees for creating a fun, efficient, and family-friendly environment. Without their dedication NWDJLS would not happen. I would also like to thank everyone who contributes financially to the show and ultimately to the students of Northwest Oklahoma. Your support truly does make a difference in the lives of hundreds.

Thank You!

Jennifer Kisling
